Peace Action Education Fund Program Accomplishments 2002

What is the organization's primary exempt purpose? Peace Action Education Fund (PAEF) is dedicated to increasing public understanding of the potential for and policy options to achieve nuclear and conventional disarmament, halting the global weapons trade, eradicating war, and promoting the recognition of internationally agreed upon human rights as the centerpiece of foreign policy

Nuclear Abolition Campaign

Urgent Call to Action End the Nuclear Danger

On June 20, 1982 one million people marched in New York City's Central Park to call for a ban on nuclear weapons and an end to the arms race. This event was a high water mark of the United States Peace Movement and one of the largest political demonstrations ever held in this country. To commemorate the event and to draw attention to President Bush's unilateral withdrawal from the internationally respected ABM Treaty on June 13 2002, Peace Action's affiliate chapters in New York City organized a Town Meeting on June 12 2002. At the town meeting, over 700 people came together to reflect on the accomplishments of the peace movement during the last twenty years.

The rally kicked off the Urgent Call to Action End the Nuclear Danger issued by Jonathan Schell, David Cortright and Randall Forsberg, all influential leaders of the peace movement in the 1980's. Activists strategized about ways to counter the Bush Administration's Nuclear Posture Review, Star Wars missile "defense" and an endless war on terrorism. Several celebrated speakers also joined the Town Meeting, including best-selling authors Jonathan Schell and Grace Paley, respected actors Ossie Davis, Jane Alexander and PAEF's own Executive Director, Kevin Martin.

PAEF endorsed the Urgent Call, established a link to the UrgentCall.org website and sent the Urgent Call to grassroots activists around the country via email. PAEF worked to educate members of Congress about the Urgent Call that led to U.S. Rep. Ed Markey's resolution supporting the Call.

In March 2002, PAEF, Peace Action, and the Nuclear Disarmament Partnership organized Congressional Educational Days in Washington DC around this issue. Peace activists joined Dr. Frank Von Hippel and other scientific professionals and members of religious communities to meet with their specific elected representatives to discuss the dangers of Star Wars and the Nuclear Posture Review. Peace Action staff conducted training workshops for over ninety participants who learned how to successfully conduct meetings with elected representatives. Nearly sixty meetings were conducted with activists and their elected representatives to discuss the dangers of Star Wars, the Nuclear Posture Review and the war on terrorism. These days were important in informing Congress about the dangers of such an aggressive military and foreign policy.

Justice Not War: Real Solutions for a Safer World

PAEF staff, working with board members, local activists and the staff and board of the Peace Action, put in place a nationally coordinated campaign to change US foreign policy. The Campaign for a New Foreign Policy is designed to operate through the 2004 elections with the objective of educating the media, policy makers and the general public on the need for and existence of alternatives to the Bush Doctrine of preemptive force.

PAEF provided staff and material resources to build immediate grassroots opposition to the threat of War on Iraq as part of a nationwide mobilization of antiwar activists. The national headquarters of PAEF and Peace Action served as a clearinghouse to local peace groups, providing information on national days of actions and major demonstrations in Washington DC and New York City.

The Student Peace Action Network (SPAN)

In late February 2002, over 300 students gathered in Southern California from around the country for the SPAN annual national summit. The summit focusing on the resurgence of peace activism in the student community, with SPAN students participating in skill trainings in order to go back and organize on their campuses. Well-known trainers from the Ruckus society and other national groups' offered students workshops in media outreach, non-violent direct action, non-violent communications, anti-oppression organizing and lobbying. For many students who attended the national summit, it was not only a chance to learn skills to take back home, but also meet other students from around the country and share organizing strategy with one another.

SPAN worked in coalition with the National Youth and Student Peace Coalition (NYSPC) and the National Coalition for Peace and Justice to organize a National Demonstration against the so-called War on Terror. The April 20th 2002 march on Washington drew over 100,000 people. The NYSPC is a coalition of more than 15 student organizations, including SPAN, United Students against Sweatshops and JustAct Youth Action for Global Justice. The National Coalition for Peace and Justice is an alliance of over 20 peace organizations including American Friends Service Committee, Fellowship of Reconciliation, Veterans for Peace, Pax Christi, Women's Action for New Directions and the War Resisters' League.

The National mobilization began with two days of workshops and panel discussions, conducted by SPAN. In-group discussions, activists examined the causes of violence and discussed the most effective means by which to eradicate it. SPAN provided a forum in which participants could discuss peaceful alternatives to the War on Terrorism and plan strategies for building a citizen movement to support such alternatives. This training and experience proved invaluable when in September, the Bush administration announced its intent to invade Iraq.
